What's International Business and Trade?

International Business and Trade crosses many disciplines and is an important component of the commercial world in which we all live. At the Department of International Business and Trade, you can learn about important issues relating to the international economics and the management of businesses that span national boundaries. The primary issues of teaching in the Department are:

- theories of international trade and international finance
- role of governments and international economic policies
- macro and micro environments facing international firms
- international business strategy
- practices of international business and trade
- foreign area studies such as Asia, Europe and the Pacific

International Business and Trade at Kyung Hee

The Department of International Business and Trade at Kyung Hee University provides students with unique insight to understand and research topics in international business and trade by combining various disciplinary lenses. Our courses consist of international economics, international business, practices of international commerce, and foreign area studies. At the same time, the school pursues integrated and multidisciplinary approaches in the international business and trade academia which can offer students broad knowledge to be a leader in the field. In addition to academic curriculum, the school offers many specialized programs to fit students needs such as 7+1 (study for one semester in affiliated foreign universities), Global Trade Expert Incubating Program (GTEP supported by Korea Ministry of Trade, Industry, and Energy), foreign and domestic internships, international business and area study, and international finance and investment. The students in our school are also very active in students-governed programs for learning different disciplines.
